

Mieterio is a young PropTech startup from Karlsruhe, which has made it its mission to revolutionize the rental housing market in Germany. In a market characterized by the different interests of the players involved, outdated structures and inefficiencies, Mieterio comes up with an innovative and novel business model. The startup simultaneously assumes the role of the tenant and landlord and thereby offers both parties significant advantages through its services. After the regional launch, the young team is planning the national expansion and will be active in 20 German cities by the end of 2021.
